

Devon and Severn IFCA News

Tuna Angling Economics Survey

Opportunity to complete an online Cefas survey to assess the economic importance of catch and release recreational fishery (CRRF) for tuna in the UK.

Cefas are seeking support from anglers to complete their survey to assess the economic importance of catch and release recreational fishery (CRRF) for tuna in the UK. D&S IFCA is helping to report this news, but is not otherwise involved.

Cefas envisage that the survey will help to understand the economic value of this fishery to ensure that its importance is considered in future policy decisions and to support recreational angling. The short online survey is about how much anglers have spent on their tuna fishing and Cefas need as many anglers as possible to complete the survey. Details, including a link (QR code) to the survey have been set out on a flyer.

A flyer for the Tuna Angling Economics Survey. The background is a photograph of a large tuna being caught on a fishing boat. The flyer has a dark blue overlay with white text. The text reads: "Help us Understand the Economic Importance of the Recreational Tuna Fishery! We need your insights! Take just 15 minutes to complete our survey on the economic importance of the recreational tuna fishery (CRRF). Your input is crucial in gathering the data we need to support this vibrant fishery in future. Your responses will help shape policies and initiatives that ensure a thriving and sustainable fishery. Take the survey now and be a part of the future of recreational tuna fishing!" followed by a right-pointing arrow. At the bottom left is the Cefas logo, and at the bottom right is a large QR code.

Help us Understand the Economic Importance of the Recreational Tuna Fishery!

We need your insights!

Take just 15 minutes to complete our survey on the economic importance of the recreational tuna fishery (CRRF). Your input is crucial in gathering the data we need to support this vibrant fishery in future.

Your responses will help shape policies and initiatives that ensure a thriving and sustainable fishery.

Take the survey now and be a part of the future of recreational tuna fishing! →

The Cefas logo, featuring a stylized fish icon and the word "Cefas" in a bold, sans-serif font, set against a dark blue background.A large QR code that links to the online survey.